THE WEDDING LIST CONUNDRUM

How many duplicate waffle irons and napkin rings do you really need from John Lewis? Now everyone is getting married older or for a second time you probably have all the crockery and blenders you require. This need not mean you should miss out on presents in favour of requesting charitable donations however, as we can construct a portfolio of fine wines for your guests to buy to start or expand your cellar.

We will work with you on a structured selection of wines for Dinner Party Drinking and Special Occasions for present consumption and for ageing that your friends can buy as individual bottles or half or full cases. With each wedding invitation we advise an insert including a web link to your chosen list and our contact details to enable purchase.

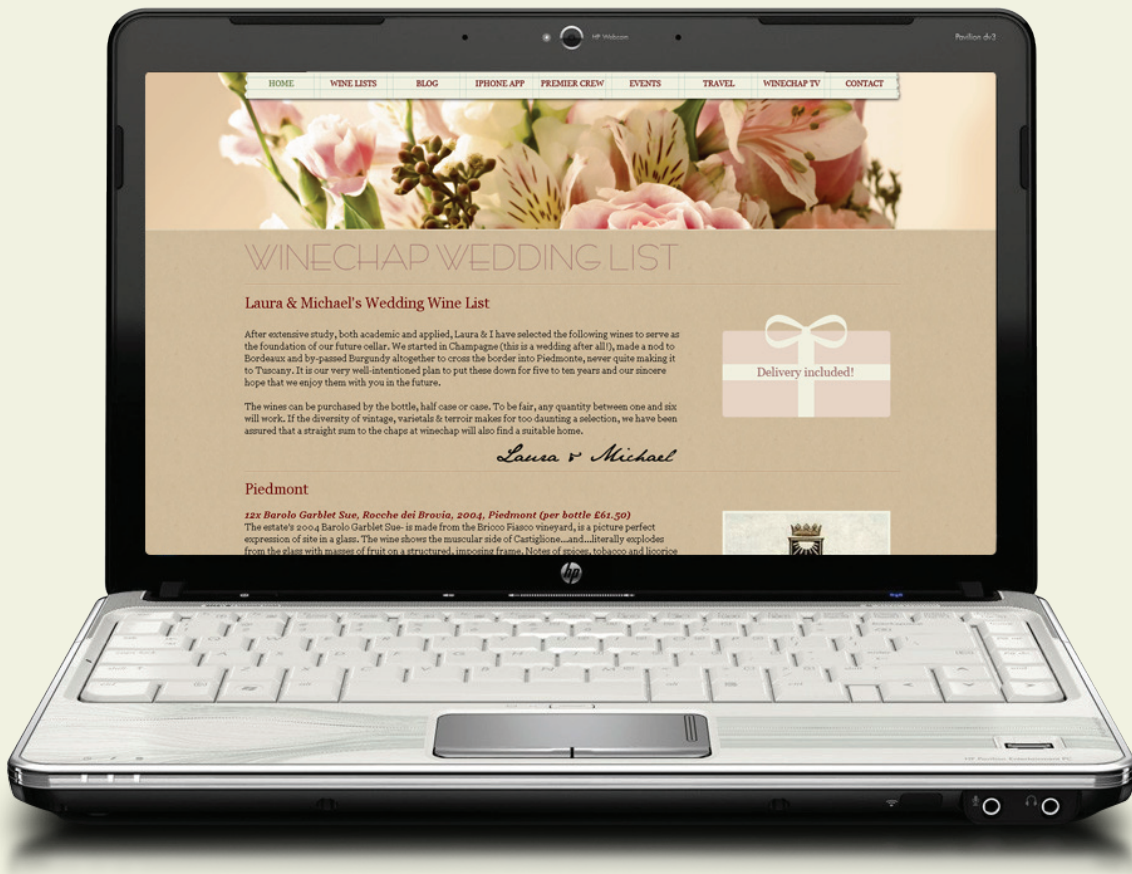

All the wines bought by your guests will be delivered together but individually tagged either to your wedding venue or directly to your home. Every bottle you open will remind you of your special day over many years as they mature in complexity and richness like the union itself (and help buoy you up through the tougher times!)

WineChap of course is happy to advise on and source the best wines for the Wedding Feast itself allowing you to ensure better quality and value than is usually offered by venues and their preferred suppliers.

If the wedding party has not been sensible enough to have curated a list such as the above then why not buy the Bride and Groom a stylish and personalised wine gift to celebrate the occasion and future anniversaries? A selection of 3 wines to mark the passing years, gift-boxed with tasting notes, food pairing suggestions and your personal message. Choose options at £50, £80 or £120 including delivery.
